

We are living in exceptional and challenging times and, as you know, we take the current situation very seriously. While we maintain communication with government agencies and are working diligently to reduce exposure to both families and staff, our goal will always be to provide compassionate funeral service to all those we serve.

Funerals are a fundamental part of a healthy grieving process. While there are certain restrictions right now, we urge you and your families to focus on the importance of what can be done, and to make use of the power of modern technology using our Viewneral Zoom platform where a private link is sent to family and friends to either listen in live, participate or see at a later date.

Because we are in the DMV area surrounded by different jurisdictions we will always follow those guidelines as to where a service can be and how many people can attend using social distancing as the guideline. Sagel Bloomfield will not decide where and when a funeral will occur as this will be left up to the synagogue, religious facility, Clergy and Cemeteries.

Sagel Bloomfield electronic funeral arrangements have been perfected during the Pandemic and we will continue offering families excellent tools to select services and caskets and ultimately sign on-line and also pay on line without even stepping into our offices.

We will continue to update our policies relating to COVID-19 and we are always available 24 hours a day to respond to when a death occurs and/or simply have questions regarding process or Advanced Planning.

Thank you,

Ed Sagel
